MANY MINERS IN THE DISTRICT STILL OUT

Scale Situation Shows Little Change Since Friday

CIRCULAR SENT OUT

Referendum Provided For in Proposition Suggested by National Board

There is practically no change in the mining situation in the valley throughout this and adjoining counties today. The miners who voted not to go to work in the district until a wage scale was agreed upon are still out, while those who stood by the action of the district scale committee are working. In Washington county the tieup is quite complete, as few have returned to work up the river, while the down river mines pretty generally voted for a suspension.

A circular has been sent out from international headquarters at Indianapolis, which may have some effect upon the action of the miners in the district. This circular calls for a referendum vote on April 14 upon the decision of the miners' representatives at the conference to withdraw wage demands and recommending that such questions of working conditions, which the miners feel are in need of adjustment should be taken up with theoperators locally theminers, meantime to remain at work.

"This proposition" reads the circular, "provides for a settlement by groups of districts, districts or by subdistricts on the basis of present prices with the understanding that in joint conference local inequalities and internal questions both as to prices and conditions may be taken up for adjustment."

Among the reasons given for ratification of this plan are that "coal markets together with industrial and economic conditions do not justify a strike at this time, if such can honorably be avoided."

The circular further declares that non-union operators are anxious to see a strike in the "organized field" and charges that representatives of the former were at the Chicago conference and at the previous one in Philadelphia "doing all in their power to bring about a disagreement and a strike."

"We are unwilling to play in their hands," it continues, "by going on a strike, throwing the mines idle and thus allowing them to fill the markets with non-union coal."

While difficulties may arise in some of the local readjustments now in progress in this state and in Indiana and Illinois, it is believed that the most of them will be adjusted. While some of the mines in this district may remain idle until after the referendum vote April 14, it is believed that by Monday some of the miners who have been opposing the action of the district policy and scale committees will return to work pending the negotiations.

To Take European Trip.

W. H. and Mrs. Coles of theWilbur expect to leave April 15 for a month's tour of Europe. They will sail on the George Washington from New York.

News of the consummation of an important real estate transaction that took place within the present week became known today. The transaction involves the purchase of the Kirk and Clark business block at 510-512 McKean avenue by Burgess S. L. Woodward and the leasing of the S. L. Woodward store room at 421 McKean avenue by the firm of Kirk and Clark. Negotiations were conducted by the Charleroi Savings and Trust Realty and Insurance company.

Mr. Woodward proposes to use the Kirk and Clark building for his furniture store. He will occupy the first and second floors, the same that the Kirk and Clark store now occupies. The third floor will still be used by the Douglas Business college and the Charleroi Business Men's Association which have rooms rented there. The second floor of the building will be occupied at once by Mr. Woodward and he will move to the first floor on June 1.

The Kirk and Clark store will be moved to the present Woodward building at 421 McKean avenue on June 1. There will be no change in the [illegible] and the stock will be slightly decreased.

The firm of Kirk and Clark has been an important one in the business life of Charleroi for 15 years. The firm was first located in rooms of the Charleroi hotel on Fifth, then upon the erection of their fine business block ter years ago, the location was changed. W. C. Clark is the manager of the store. He is a leader in community affairs. The firm has always been progressive.

Mr. Woodward moved to Charleroi a few years ago from North Charleroi, opening up his furniture store. He has progressed through the utilization of up-to-date business methods. Lately he has felt the need of enlarged quarters, with the transaction just announced as the result.

PALM SUNDAY OBSERVANCE IS ARRANGED

Tomorrow is Palm Sunday, which ushers in Holy Week, the most solemn period of the Lenten season. Palm Sunday will be observed at St. Jerome's and the other Catholic churches in Charleroi by the usual ceremony of blessing the palms. The various Holy Week services will also be fittingly observed by the Catholic churches next week.

Palm Sunday is now observed by the Federated Protestant churches as "Anti-Profanity Day" in a campaign for the purification of speech. Easter Sunday comes on April 15, and will be pretty generally celebrated in some form by the Protestant churches as well as the Catholic churches, with whom Easter Sunday is of most solemn and deep significance.

NORMALS PASS INTO CONTROL OF THE STATE

Pennsylvania will take over and operate within a few months the state normal schools now conducted privately although largely supported by the state at California, Edinboro and Lock Haven, the final plans being approved at the meeting Friday of the State Board of Education at Pittsburg.

The Westchester Normal School has been acquired, the state paying $12,000, assuming indebtedness of $75,000 and getting in return a property valued at $1,000,000. Fiscal reports of the schools show:

California State Normal School—Outstanding stock (which represents the purchase price the state pays) $2,500; debt, $109,500; value of property, $350,000.

Edinboro State Normal School—Outstanding stock, $8,500; debt, $40,000; value of property, $300,000.

Lock Haven State Normal School—Outstanding stock, $1,000, debt, $80,000; value of property, $775,000.

Dr. Martin H. Brumbaugh's candidacy for Governor is expected to create a vacancy on the state board. Dr. Brumbaugh made no statement of his plans to the board. There is some talk of urging Superintendent Davidson for a place on the board in event Superintendent Brumbaugh resigns.

For the year thetotal number of new buildings and additions was 306 against 280 last year and construction work was carried on in 58 out of the 67 counties.

CREST AVENUE PUPILS GIVE FINAL PROGRAM

School Entertainment of Friday Night Interesting Feature

TEACHERS WORK HARD

Prof. I. T. Daniel, Director, and Instructors Who Assisted Are Praised

Well rendered and interesting was the program given by the pupils of the Crest avenue school building at the high school auditorium, Friday evening. The entertainment was under the direction of Prof. I. T. Daniel and teachers of the Crest avenue building. The children showed the result of careful training.

"A Song of Spring," the first number, was well rendered by pupils of the fourth and fifth grades. Sixteen girls presented a pretty Chinese Lantern drill. Boys of the first and second grades rendered a Sailor chorus. One of the most pleasing numbers of the program was the operetta "Mother Goose and Company."

In the operetta Janet Spencer, displayed great talent in playing the part of Gertrude, a disobedient child, who was punished by being confined in a dark room. As reading was her favorite pastime she was not permitted to take any books with her but was to spend the time thinking how best she could please her mother. Unknown to her mother Gertrude conceals what she believes to be a copy of "Through the Looking Glass," but which proves to be "Mother Goose." She detests the book and regrets her carelessness, her candle goes out and Goose appears on the scene and offers luck. Margaret Baker as Mother Goose appears on a scene and offers to take her on a visit to her family. She accepts the invitation but experiences many trials and tribulations during the trip. Finally Gertrude wishes herself at home. Mother Goose heeds her wish and restores her to her mother, a penitent child. The parts of Old-Woman-Who-Lived-in-a-Shoe taken by Clara Hobbs, King Cole by Clifford Braddock, Fiddlers by Joseph Riley, Paulo Boriciuni, and Nickolas Petrassavich, Jack Spratt by Francis Riley, Mrs. Jack Spratt by Adele Shigat, Mistress Mary by Lillian Brison, Miss Muffet by Ethel Strauser, Bo-Peep by Lizzie Verso, Simple Simon by Ferdinand Brison, Boy Blue by Henry Wikstrom, Jack Horner by Milton Krenitzen, Bobby Shafto, by Henry Shigat, Jack by William John, Jill by Grace McClurg, and Tommy Tucker by Francis Hornbake were capably taken. Six flowers and a chorus of children of Mother Goose completed the cast of characters.

"A Good Night Song" was sung by twenty five small girls. Miss Ruby Charles was the accompanist.

The program was the last of a series of four entertainments given by the pupils of the Charleroi schools. The entertainments were all pleasing and well arranged. At the close of the program Professor I. L. Pollock publicly thanked Prof. I. T. Daniel, who directed the performance and the teachers for the work of training the children together with the people who had supported the schools in the work.

MUTUAL HELP.

The Washington Board of Trade has an agricultural committee that is co-operating with the Grange and other farmers' organizations for the mutual benefit of all concerned. Through the agency of this a government agricultural expert is employed to promote the interests that are beneficial to both producer and consumer, and to indicate and instruct in scientific and improved methods of agriculture. As a result the farmers and gardeners adjacent to the county seat are stimulated to produce more and better products and deal directly with the consumers, while the residents of the county seat are better served in this respect and at cheaper rates.

This was the same sort of co-operation that the Charleroi Business Men's Association pursued when they first installed the curb market. The farmers and gardeners in this community had no regular organization with which to negotiate, and the members of the association had to deal individually with the producers on the subject. This made the proposition a more complicated one, but persistent action accomplished beneficent results. What is needed is continuous action along the same lines this season if the curb market is to be again installed. Last year the project was not so successful as the preceding year, but the failure was due largely to an unfavorable agricultural season.

While much has already been said about the importance of the agricultural producer dealing directly with the community, the point cannot be opportunities and markets afforded in thecommunity, the point cannot be too strongly emphasized. Charleroi offers one of the best possible markets for farm and garden products and there are ample facilities for supplying the demand. What is needed is to develop and promote this production, and in this every person can help.

BEARING FRUIT.

The banquet tendered the high school basket ball team this week in honor of their athletic victories was a fitting climax to a series of clean sporting contests in school athletics which aroused our citizens and school patrons to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. These events have demonstrated the value of athletics in connection with the intellectual training of our high schools when conducted on a clean and high plane of honor. Not only have they been stimulating and inspiring to the whole corps of students, but they have aroused the interest of the patrons in the schools and school work to a degree never before attained in the town.

From interest in the [illegible] team and other athletic school events the attention of our citizens and patrons has been directed to the school work in all its departments. For the first time, perhaps, our citizens as a whole are realizing the vital importance of our public school system and the work it is accomplishing. Sociologists writers have much to say these days of the necessity of a "melting pot" or "mixing bowl" in the amalgamation of the alien races that come to our shores and it would seem professed to see a grave menace to our American institutions, but in Pennsylvania the amalgamating process is most effectually accomplished by our admirable free school system. It takes one or two generations to develop a dangerous class that would constitute a menace to society, but with our free and compulsory system of education the breeding of this class is not possible.

Our Charleroi schools are now in their highest state of efficiency, and the patrons are showing their proper appreciation of one of the greatest blessings that it is possible for civilization to confer—a free education for every child in every condition of life.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Sheriff R. G. Lutton of Washington county has received a copy of the 44th annual report of the Allegheny county workhouse, which contains some interesting information to our citizens, from the fact that many Washington county offenders are committed to that institution. This is the case where the court wishes to impose a sentence at labor which the county jail cannot accommodate, and which is most too short for the penitentiary. Last year the Washington county court committed 51 prisoners to the Allegheny county workhouse, while the justices of the county committed 20 more. It is at the option of the Allegheny county officials whether or not they receive outside prisoners, but they usually do so from the adjacent counties when the facilities are not overtaxed.

According to the report the number of prisoners at the institution December 31, was 698. The number received from January 1, 1913, to December 31, 1913, was 3,798. There were 3,214 persons discharged during the year by expiration of sentence; 137 by commutation of sentence; 294 by order of court; 11 by death; 95 by parole; two by pardon; six by transfer to insane asylums, and three by escape.

Financially, the institution is more than self-sustaining. The receipts of the institution for the year totaled $338,216.11. There were extraordinary expenses for improvements totaling $101,068.03. The total expenditures were $324,283.26. In addition to the large and highly productive farm connected with the institution there are several factories, where brooms, carpets and chairs are manufactured. Offenders committed there have to work, and the confirmed jailbirds who rather court a jail sentence that otherwise in our own county puts up a vigorous "holler" against being sent to the workhouse.

The institution, however, is "some farmer." Last year the farm produced 215 tons of hay; 55 tons of straw; 65 tons of fodder; 10 tons of alfalfa; 1,201 bushels of wheat; 411 of oates; 126 of oates and peas; 398 of rye; 2,896 of corn; 440 sweet corn; 272 of table carrots; 365 of horse carrots; 181 of navy beans; 1,092 of green beans; 79 of apples; 929 of tomatoes; 195 of kohlraba; 178 of table beets; 1,408 of cow beets; 825 of onions; 409 of green onions; 10 of onion sets; 107 of peas; 36 of pickles; eight of peppers; 103 of spinach; 291 of parsnips; 90 of rutabaga; 750 of celery; 75 of cauliflower; 86,600 heads of cabbage; 21,914 quarts of milk; 2,952 quarts of buttermilk; 112 quarts of cream; 3,347 pounds of butter; 692 pounds of veal; 24,995 pounds of pork; 4,927 pounds of beef; one bull calf; two Jersey heifers and 25 suckling pigs. Six dollars' worth of rhubarb also was produced.

Of the total number committed last year 159 were under 20 years of age. The largest number were between the ages of 20 and 40 years. Of the 3,798 committed during the year, all but 316 drank either moderately, occasionally or were intemperate. Only 64 had no religious instruction. Jews were the smallest in representation of religious bodies.

It is said that the manager of a Monessen vaudeville house pulled off a pretty raw one recently on a sore artist who had been included in his bill, but who was particularly "rotten."

"You're going to get me," said the actor, "as I won't stand for any graft in my act, by house."

"But I don't use profanity," insisted the would-be artist.

"No," said the manager, "but the audience would."

ture was produced in Cuba and the Cuban Army and the U. S. Navy both aided in making it a success. The story portrays life in a mining camp and the way in which Cuban rebels take up arms against the ruler at the slightest provocation. A pretty love story is revealed with the picture. Original Cuban scenery makes the picture impressive with its beauty.

THE ALVIN—PITTSBURG

The [illegible] of the production of "The Life of the Saviour" at the Alvin Theatre week of April 6 (Holy Week) is being anticipated with keen interest by both theatregoers and churchgoers, as it is recognized as quite the most imposing visualization of a scriptural subject ever offered in this country. Pathe Freres made the production the scenes of which are true reproductions contemporaneous with "The Life of Our Saviour," having been made in the Holy Land by a veritable army of competent workers in the different departments, all co-operating under the general guidance of men professionally familiar with the Bible narrative.

By way of explanation it may be well to state that the subject has been handled with infinite delicacy and devout reverence, so as to give no offense to the most refined nature, even in the most vital scenes where our Master is represented performing the acts chronicled in the Bible. Everywhere sublime dignity is maintained.

THE DUQUESNE—PITTSBURG

"Madame Sherry," next week's offering of the Harry Davis Players at the Duquesne, beginning with matinee Monday, April 6, and continuing twice daily, assures exhilarating breezes of harmony and comedy throughout Pttsburg for those who want to catch thespirit of early spring. "Madame Sherry" boasts at least one musical rumbet which has been played and sung oftener in this country than "The Merry Widow," and everyone will concede that's going some. It is a polka called "Every Little Movement Has a Meaning All It's Own," and its popularity is deserved, for there is a fascinating flit about the composition which is genuinely irresistible. The score of "Madame Sherry" is rich in appealing music. Some idea of the fun developed may perhaps be gleaned by a summary of the characters of the play which, besides the lovers, include an Italian house janitor, his Irish wife, a lively, fun-loving actress, a New York man-about-town, a whimsical uncle of the maid in love, and others, including the pupils of a dancing school and the guests of a yachting party. Those who recall the occasional excursions of the Davis Players into the realms of musical comedy this season will not want to miss this production of "Madame Sherry," which will be the most elaborate yet attempted.

THE GRAND—PITTSBURG

Insouciant Anna Held, chic and piquant as when she first faced an American theatre audience, is coming to the Grand Opera House next week, beginning Monday afternoon, April 6, surrounded by vaudeville turns from all parts of the compass and representing the ultimate of varied artistry. Miss Held is the biggest drawing magnet in the two-a-day. It is her first tour in this form of entertainment and the first time also she has ever appeared at popular prices. For her tour in vaudeville Miss Held has chosen a group of songs, some of them entirely new and written expressly for her and others selected from the brilliantly interpreted musical comedies in which her greatest successes have been won.

Mr. Davis announces the return after several years' tour of Europe of the maids who made "Hiawatha" famous, Meredith Sisters, in a representation of "Girls of Other Nations." A musical comedy offering with songs and dances will be given by the lively trio, Lydell, Rogers and Lydell. Harry A. Ellis, a robust tenor, will sing a repertoire of catchy songs. Ernie and Ernie offer "Three Feet of Comedy," introducing an eccentric Monopede and a comical German girl. A strenuous act called "Buffet des Falls" is promised by Charles Nasrac and Company. It is a grotesque tumbling novelty. There will be a lot of other attractions along with these, the whole forming a composite of vaudeville offerings.

Progressiveness is measurable by the number of precedents the progressive can break.

MONESSEN WARRIOR IS BACK FROM TWO WARS

Cleo Economy Tells Interesting Stories of Hard Conflicts in Balkans--Though American Citizen He Serves With Greek Army

Cleo Economy, a confectioner of Monessen, has just returned from Greece, where he went in the fall of 1912 as a volunteer to take part of the Balkan war and in the Bulgarian war. Economy was wounded once, this occurring during his Bulgarian service, he being struck in the left side by a flying shell.

Economy is an American citizen, having been naturalized, but in spite of this when the first call for volunteers came in Greece he left. He left Monessen on Sunday, October 26. He was absent just 17 months. He served eight months in the Balkan war and a little more than one month in active service in the Bulgarian trouble, with five months doing guard and sentry duty. After the close of hostilities and Cleo's company received its honorable discharge, December 27, 1913, he spent the remainder of the time visiting his parents and old friends in Greece, having left home for America over two weeks ago, arriving in New York last Wednesday, and spending a few days sight seeing before leaving for Monessen.

In the first war, Greece against Turkey, he saw some pretty tough times. Cleo recalls where at one time he and his company lay 68 days in ambush, daring not to move during daylight for a distance of a yard, if they did taking the chance of being picked off by the enemy's sharp shooters.

During that time they had no change of clothing and for two days at a time Economy says went without food or so much as a glass of water. The commissary was ten miles distant and food could only be sent by messenger on foot at night-time, the country being so rugged that horses could not be used.

Cleo and several comrades one night found a pool or spring of very fine water, but lying all about it were dead soldiers who had been shot by sharp shooters while in the act of trying to slake their thirst, but under cover of darkness, the daring Monessen boy took chances and got a refreshing drink.

Three days after the capture of the city of Janina by the Greek army, the soldiers were sent back to Athens and on account of recognized bravery the company in which was Economy was chosen to give a salute in honor of the late King George, who met death at the hand of an assassin.

After the king's funeral, Cleo's company was sent to Salonica where it remained during the Bulgarian war—28 days and nights. During the first three days it was a steady battle with no sleep and nothing to eat but a bit of half cooked lamb meat.

AMONG THE THEATRES

LYRIC—CHARLEROI

"The Rural Slave," the fourth picture of the series of "The Adventures of Kathlyn" was shown at the Lyric this week. The picture which was produced in the Orient portrays many beautiful and mysterious scenes. "The Fireman's Conscience," a thrilling drama was another good feature of the week's program. "The Drudge" a two part picture featured the noted motion picture players William Humphry and Dorothy Kelly. "The Blinded Heart," a pathetic and touching drama presented Arthur Johnson in the leading role. "The Joke on Jane" and "Out Blacked," both comedies were exceptionally good pictures.

PALACE—CHARLEROI

An exceptionally good vaudeville program was the chief attraction at the Palace theatre this week. The Famous Morton Trio of harmony singers and dancers headed the program. In connection with the vaudeville program a three reel special motion picture, "The Buried Secret" was shown Thursday night. Manager Barnhart has programed for Monday Marion Leonard the popular actress in a three part picture, "A Rose of Yester Year" and a four reel feature with Evelyn Prescott in the leading role.

AVOID QUICK LUNCHES ADVICE OF DR. DIXON

State Health Commissioner Tells How to Keep Healthy in America Where Quick Lunch Institution is Always at Hand

In every town and village you may behold staring at you in the day time and emblazoned in electric lights at night, the words "Quick Lunch" says Samuel G. Dixon, M. D., State Commissioner of Health.

The quick lunch is distinctly an American institution and one of which no reason to be proud. To the German, the Englishman or the Frenchman the American habit of consuming food as if in a perpetual race against time, is regarded as a barbarous custom.

As eating is essential to living it is well to consider it as deserving of attention and not treat the demand of our stomachs as if it were an impertinent request to be answered curtly. If the mind is concentrated upon business or other matters the digestion suffers. Devote your entire attention to meals to gratify your palate by the flavor of the food eaten. This gives a healthful impetus. Excessive seasoning or rich condiments should not be used to replace the lack of true flavor or disguise the poor quality of the food served.

The comparatively limited list of foods which are considered digestible in these days of indigestion seem for the most part to be chosen with one primary purpose in view—their speedy consumption. Pastries or fried foods seem to be chiefly in demand. These are generally washed down with ice water or other liquid which during the summer months is usually cold enough to paralyze digestion.

For the average worker the period between the morning and the evening meal is from ten to eleven hours. The body needs nourishment to maintain physical or mental activity. Pastries contain but a small percentage of nourishment. Coffee and tea are stimulants pure and simple. Fried food may almost be considered a national menace.

When you go to lunch take your time to eat. Let the roar of the hungry multitude around you and the harried waiters leave you undisturbed. The profit of the proprietor is in the quickness with which you consume your lunch and make way for another customer. You will profit individually by taking a reasonable length of time to enjoy your food and stimulate the digestive glands.

SAYS AMERICA IS LAND OF OPPORTUNITY

To the Editor of the Charleroi Mail:

We have all reason to be proud of the high school basketball association and to rejoice in the faithful work which brought to the high school team the championship and we have reason to be proud of the school board. I attended the banquet at high school but at that time could not express my appreciation. But I was happy to be there to enjoy the fine lunch, speeches, jokes and the inspiring music by the high school orchestra under direction of Prof. Daniel.

The wonderful country of the United States of America in which I have lived since 1904 means much in the way of freedom.

Sincerely,
John Tchacy's.

IS THE WIFE'S RIGHT

SPENDING IS HER PARTICULAR BUSINESS IN LIFE.

The Whole of Man's Personal Activity Is a Mere Preliminary to the Wife's Activity—Money Is Made to Spend.

Your imagination, once set in motion, will show you that your conjugal existence is divided into two great departments—the getting and the spending departments. Wordsworth chanted that in getting and spending we lay waste our years. We could not lay waste our years in a more satisfying manner. The two departments, mutually indispensable, balance each other. You organized them. You made yourself the head of one and your wife the head of the other. You might, of course, have organized them otherwise. It was open to you, in the Hottentot style, to decree that your wife should do the earning while you did the spending. But for some mysterious reason this arrangement did not appeal to you and you accordingly go forth daily to the office and return therefrom with money. The theory of your daily excursion is firmly based in the inherent nature of things. The theory is made in order that money may be spent—either at once or later.

The whole of your own personal activity is a mere preliminary to your wife's activity. Without hers, yours would be absurd, ridiculous, futile, supremely silly.

By spending she completes and justifies your labor; she crowns your life by spending. You married her that she might spend. You wanted some one to spend, and it was understood that she should fill the situation. She was brought up to spend, and you knew that she was brought up to spend. Spending is her vocation. And yet you turn round on her and complain: "She only thinks of spending!"

Exercise your imagination to put yourself in your wife's place, and you will perceive that she is constantly in the highly delicate difficulty of having to ask for money, or at any rate, of having to suggest or insinuate that money should be given to her. It is her right and even her duty to ask for money, but the foolish, illogical creature—like most women, even those with generous and polite husbands—regards the process as a little humiliating for herself. You have perhaps never asked for money. But your imagination will probably be able to make you feel how it feels to ask for money. A woman whose business in life is to spend money which she does not and cannot earn, may sometimes have to face a refusal when she asks for money. But there is one thing from which she ought to be absolutely and eternally safe—and that is a snub. —Arnold Bennett, in the Metropolitan Magazine.

Arm in Arm? Well, Perhaps.

For better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, the female of a bygone century who fluttered on a strong man's arm is very nearly extinct in America.

The male of today is lucky if he is not walloped on the tennis court, outswum, outgolfed and outwalked. On that most crucial of all occasions when old fashions come most to the fore, a bride sometimes succeeds in trembling like a leaf or looking faint or suggesting by some ingenious manner a posture or speech that she is a poor, weak, defenseless thing. But the attitude seldom lasts beyond the church door.

So the current pow-wow in Paris and London over the rules for arm-in-arm walking will have only an academic interest on this side of the ocean. Side by side, yes. But perish the thought of a strong woman clinging to anything save her own sure self confidence!

Some Personal Effects.

When the late J. Pierpont Morgan was in Washington as a witness during the senate investigation of presidential campaign contributions last fall he dropped into the offices of the revenue service in the treasury department, and was met by a clerk.

"Well, what can I do for you?" asked the clerk, who did not know the great financier from a side of sole leather.

"I'm thinking about moving some of my personal effects from my London town house to New York," said Mr. Morgan, politely. "I want to find out whether or not they are dutiable."

"Well," said the clerk, looking profoundly wise, "what is the value of the stuff?"

Right there the clerk got the shock of his life.

Oh," replied Morgan, "something, I should say, between seven and ten millions of dollars."

Solicitous for the Whole Family.

Living on Armour boulevard is an affable old German woman whose efforts to be friendly sometimes touch upon the ridiculous. As she came out of her house the other evening to pick up the Star their family physician chanced to be passing.

"Goot efening, doctor; und how are you?" she asked with a funny little inflection at the end of the line.

"Oh, I am well, thank you."

"Und how iss your nice leetle vife?"

"She is well."

"Und how iss your son, Looey? I don't never see him no more like I used to."

"Oh, Lewis is well, thank you."

"Und how iss the oitermobeele?" she inquired just as solicitously.

The doctor looked amused.

"It isn't well," he replied. "It is in the hospital for repairs."—Kansas City Star.
